FAMOUS PICTURE OF "THIRST"

Beproduced From Life in the Struggles With the Dutch-How the Brave British Soldier Stands Under Fire, With Nothing to Cool His Parched Throat.

LONDON, March 31.-Everybody regembers the famous picture of "Thirst," which portrays the gaunt, half-starved lion in the midst of the desert, lapping up the few remaining drops of moisture from an impoverished A correspondent in the Morning Post tells us that though the British soldier tells us that though the British Boldler has thirsted in the thirstiest corners of the globe," he admits the veldt to be a the globe, are admits the ventr to be a firsh experience. Aden, India, Egypt, the Soudan, but here is something, not hotter, not drier, not dustier, but less endurable for some reason. It is the army and South Africa together, no doubt which is the cause, for men who have lived in Kimberley, Johannesburg, Bloemfontein and Natal are only now, while campaigning, acquiring the experience. The army, with its inces-gant tramping and the defenseless fog of dust that hangs about its camps.

And to that must be added the computsory life in the sun, the sun at its hottest and driest hours, the absence of shade, the parching suction of the sand which is bed, chair and table.

Curious to Live Without a Bottle.

It will be quite curious to live with-out a water bottle siung about one's shoulders. One can scarcely remember the day when water was not regarded with reverence and jealous envy when it could be made to run clear nuous and unvalued by a turn of the finger. Here, when one knows by tired limbs the weight of what one drinks, the thought of water flowing through pipes seems a dream of para-dise. And such water! Water through which one could see, which left the mud at the bottom of the mug, and did not stain what it was spilt on. One remembers that in England they analyze that kind of water. Why, the water we drink here is often too thick even to filter. One cannot pump through a berkfelt candle. At Ramdam there was a big pon One cannot pump it what was left of moisture in the dam. One bathed in it only under the most pressing compulsion of cleanliness. The water was very shallow, but the mud was black and deep. One sank to the knees if one tried to walk, and so sat gently, haif in mud and half in brown syrup, and thanked God for water. One rose from it with the green leacher hanging about one's body like bits of sea weed, and with a sprinkling of less known insects.

Horses looked askance at that pool but the men drank out of it greedily and drank of it, where alone they could reach it, where the horser hoofs had churned it into a blackish green liquor, thick as soup.

Vignette From Field of Battle. Here is a vignette from the field of battle:

"Twenty yards to the left a man is lying pressd flat against the ground, He is very much the ground color, and the occasional dust whirls over him have nided the disguise. There are little tufts of withered scrub which help to hide him, though but a few inches high. The sun has been blazing on his back and the sand above him for seven hours, and the yeldt wavers confusedly in the glare of the heat. A pale blue lake of mirage has formed about the furthest kopjes, and left them like dark islands in the sky.

"The man on the left feels gingerly the tin bottle which lies under his left elbow, his fingers spread over its felt covering, and gives it a gentle shake. The shake is repeated, and he begins to draw the bottle slowly under him, keeping his body rigidly stiff. The job is a long one, because the bottle strap catches in his accoutrements, and he dare not move to free it. When he has it at last beneath him he begins to turn over, as slowly as he has done He lifts his foot a few inches to balance himself, and the next instant there is a spit of dust from the sand beside him, not much more than an arm's length away. He keeps his eyes on the mark the bullet has mad? remains for some moments, as if it had turned him into stone." Then with a more laborious patience he resumes his movement, until at last he is on his back, and has the bottle above Tongue Like a Piece of Fur.

"It holds only a few hot drops, but he thought he had even drained them an hour, and his tongue is like a plece of fur in his mouth. He got with a rush to the place he occupies about i o'clock in the morning, when a sudden trackle from the river in front of him hid the whole line on its face, where it has remained, with occasional wriggling forward, ever since. He is or the right of his company, and alone, for the man next him, after chaffing the Beer shooting for half an hour, began suddenly to whimper, and has been still

"He failed himself to take the bullets humorously, but he grew used to them till one came between his face and the ground, and struck his belt buckle Then he cursed them, and was afraid, till he lest al other feelings in the aw-

he lifts his rifle the dust begins to jump again, and the rifle barrel is scalding hot, the varnish is sizzling on the stock as though it stood before a fire, and to touch it seems to quicken his unbeara. ble thirst.

Writes Words in the Sand

"He tries to guess at the hour as the sun goes over and falls on his left side He writes words in the sand with his fingers, and rubs them out, bewiders an ant which runs with its bundle of food in front of him; does anything he can to keep from thinking of the maddening drouth within him. What he really thinks of God knows. 'I lay there blarsting them Boers so long as I can remember," said one who had lost consciousness after eight hours of that kind of fighting, and his attitude was probably characteristic. But cursing is not cool work, and dries a man already drouthy, while still the crackle of the fire comes from the river and death stands before a drink. At last while there are still some three hours of daylight, the patter of rifles along the dongas on the further bank grows more and more hurried, till it runs into a continuous roll. A last determined disastrous attempt is being made to push back the enemy's right The Seaforths, Cornwalls and Canadians, mixed together, are clambering leaping, blundering forward across the p, intricate channels of the dongo beds.

The Man on the Other Side.

"But the man on the other side of the river only knows of what is going forward-both the swell and spread of the fire. Five minutes, and it has sunk again to the snap, snap of solitary ri-What has happened? are the bodies in those pits of death Where is the enemy, and where is the friend. He has not the least idea. The flesh of his face, stained walnut brown by the sun, has a dry, twisted look, like the parchel stem of a scrub, though all the moisture had been wrung from it. One grows to know that look out here. His fingers never leave his water bottle, nor his eyes the green fringe of bush along the Another hour, and the guns about him cease firing, and a new fight seems to be beginning far away on th right. The rattle grows louder on the right, a Howitzer battery has come into action, brownish puffs of lyddite are bursting along the kopje. But the man lying in the scrub pays no heed to it. His arms are spread out flat, his fingers dug into the sand He is pulling himself slowly forward, his eyes glaring ahead through the When a bullet strikes near him he stops a moment, but goes on again. So in about half an hour he covers about fifty yards. He can see the coo hollow of the river, but there is only brown grass along the banks, and his one chance lies in a dash. He is on all fours for a spring, but he gets no fur-A rifle has been following the faint trail of dust above him, and he sinks down in a lump, with a bullet through his head."

The stock market made the expected response to Saturday's unfavorable bank statement by a general drawing in of speculative ventures. The selling pressure was not particularly severe in the general market, but with the curtailment of the buying demand, consequent upon the disappointment over the bank showing, the burden of offerings was sufficient to bear down prices to a lower level. The higher range of prices in London and an opening here above Saturday's level in sympathy did not have the hopped-for effect of dissuading sellers. On the contrary the higher prices seemed to invite profitaking and the opening gains were not long maintained. The acute depression manifested by sugar had an additional influence in depressing the market. This mercural industrial gave evidence during the latter part of the day of being over-sold, and after having fullen analyse light points recovered more than half of the decline. The room traders who had sold the list on the strength of the weakness in sugar were other points. As a consequence the closing was active and firm at a level considerably above the low point of the majority of stocks. The weakness of sugar in the morning caused signs of lively sympathy at other points in the industrial list. People's Gas, the Toberco stocks and a number of the iron and steel stocks fell away easily from 1 to 3 points. The strength manifested by the New York Traction served as an offset to this, the railrond list maintained a condition resembling suspended animation. Large inroads upon the Pacific stocks, Pennsylvania and the grangers, turned the tide toward depression until aggressive strength developed in Missouri Pacific. This stock moved up to 55½ in the late transactions on heavy buying, and Broaklyn Transit rose buoyant to 75½, with a stimulating effect on the general list. Very heavy selling orders were attributed to Chicago account, and a sharp fall in New York exchange at Chicago to thirty-five cents discount may bave been due to this cause. The movement in the specialties was due to individual causes. The street was full of rumors all day regarding Sugar and having to do with the rise in the price of raw sugars. Brooklyn Transit was manipulated by a pool with a preliminary tip for an advance. Disappointment over the reported terms of the People's Gas Ogden settlement was the cause of weakness in People's Gas. London showed a disposition to buy stocks here in spite of the stiffness of the London market on the stating up of another instalment of the war loan, but last week's large increase in loans here is generally attributed to large borrowings for London account to carry stocks here. Although the stock market waskened on the banks showing, the money market falled to show any effect of the decrease in resources of the banks, Business in bonds was of moderate volume and prices were well held. Total sales par value, 32,455,000.

Breadstuffs and Provisions.

Breadstuffs and Provisions.

CHICAGO—The wheat market showed both strength and activity to-day, influenced by the reduced world's shipments and some unfavorable crop reports, May closing %6%c over Saturday. Corn yielded to the profit taking pressure, May closing %6%c down, Provisions, helped by higher hogs, closed strong 19617%c improved; May oats at the close were ¼c depressed.

Wheat began the session strong. World's shipments for the week showed a reduction of over a million bushels and there was a moderate decrease on passage. The smallness of the Russian contribution to the shipments was a matter of comment. The Fronch minister of agriculture was quotad as putting the estimate of this crop in France under that of 1898 and reporting increased anxiety over the outlook. Paris was advanced equal to 1c per bushel. Increased complaints were reported from Austria and Hungary and the India area was placed at 30 per cent under 1893. Liverpool stocks showed a marked decrease and that market was strong. Domestic lidings were of drouth in the south and of unfavorable prospects in various sections of the wheat growing territory. With this array of conditions in evidence, shorts covered with great activity. May opened 46%c6%c over Saturday's close at 67667%c674c, and advanced to 67%c. The cash demand was moderate and the announcement of an increase in the visible of 1,208,000 bushels caused a reaction which, helped along by the break in corn, carried May back to 66%c. Shorts covered on the decline, however, and a rully followed. May recovered to 66%cffc, at which the market closed, strong and %50%cf over Saturday's close at 67667c. Shorts covered on the decline, however, and a rully followed. May recovered to 66%cffc, at which the market closed, strong and %50%cf over Saturday. New York reported twenty-two loads taken for export. Altantic port clearances in wheat and flour were equal to 290,000 bushels. Carria displants 517,000 bushels last year. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 698 cars, against 517,000 bushels last yea condition would be put at 30 per centcompared with the December reportmaking the condition $7.1 per cent.

Corn was only fairly active: The market was firm early, helped by the wheat and provisions strength, but the pressure of profit-seeking lots, combined with stop-loss sales which caught the decline around 35%c, causeds break which was not recovered and the close was rather weak. Seaboard clearances were liberal, but so were primary receipts. Receipts here were 528 cars, 83 cars over the estimate. The cash demand was slow. New York report dhirty-two loads taken for export. May opened 40%45%c up at 4094046404c and advanced to 40%c.
The break carried May to 39%c and the close was 16%c down at 39%c. A big general demand and higher prices at the yards were reflected in higher prices in the provisions pit. There was considerable nervousness over the possibility of a squeeze and this was influential in sending shorts to cover. There was a wide outside demand as well as buying by packers. Sales were mostly made by profit taking longs. May pork ranged from $115 674-612.50.
